Her Birthday Violets.

By NELL SPEED.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Jessie Morgan.

Naturally the new boarder had been seated beside the landlady's favorite, Miss Imogene Goldberg. Mrs. De Lancey firmly believed that Miss Goldberg's high blond pompadour and rhinestone dog collar lent eclat to her establishment.

But, oddly enough, Jane Williams, whose hair was parted demurely in the middle and who wore her grandmother's old fashioned locket under her plain pongee shirt waist, realized that the fine gray eyes of the new boarder were looking her way frequently and intently.

She tried to analyze her feelings with the salad, and when the coffee—such thick yet spiritless coffee—was served she decided that it was embarrassment and not a memory which stirred her whenever the gray eyes glanced her way.

Still at the conclusion of the meal she climbed three uncompromising flights of poorly carpeted stairs to her hall room and drew from her trunk her small but treasured box of photographs.

There they were; the father who had died the year of her graduation, the mother who had left her alone to fight the world only twelve months before, a couple of aunts who had forgotten her in the needs and pleasures of their own children, several teachers and three girls in her class at the high school.

But there was no picture with masculine eyes that could possibly have resembled the gray ones which had watched her gravely across the table in the dingy dining room.

"I am getting moody," she said to herself as she prepared for bed. "I must turn over a new leaf. Tomorrow is my birthday. I can't afford to turn sour and old maidish at twenty-one. When I go back to the office on Monday morning I'll be more pleasant and make friends with the other girls. I've been living too much in dreams of the past."

Yet when she fell asleep it was the dream again of the past. It was her birthday, the first party in celebration of that day which she could remember with any sort of distinctness.

She was dressed in pink tulle all spattered with paper stars, and there were pink candles on the birthday cake. No one knew why an ordinarily well behaved and unmischievous child should do such a thing, but she suddenly decided to steal into the dining room and light the birthday cake before the "party came in."

The match sputtered and jumped. She tried to climb quickly from the chair, but the tiny flame was quicker still. In a flash the pretty pink tarlatan blazed up far above the candles, and then she forgot everything in her fright until she felt some one rolling her over and over on the carpet and battering her with his coat, and that had been Willie, the cavalier of her wee girlhood.

She remembered how her mother kissed Willie and cried over him, and he had "poohpoohed" with very red face and shuffling feet. Their adventure was handed down as one of the traditions of the town, but when she was twelve Willie went away to live with his Grandfather Grey in the far west.

Later they had gone to Mexico, and Jane had lost track of them, although never forgetting in her own hard struggle for a livelihood.

And Willie had big gray eyes, just like those of the new boarder. She woke with a start. Now she knew why this man had attracted her attention. Of course the world was full of men with gray eyes. There were not colors enough to go around. Some must be duplicated, and it was very silly of her to think about Willie any more. Doubtless he was married even now to some dusky senorita whose father owned valuable silver mines.

So she turned over and fell asleep again, not to awaken until some one tapped at her door and the maid, with new respect in her bearing, entered, carrying a huge purple box.

"This here package's for you, Miss Williams," she said, but holding it as if loath to yield it to its rightful owner. "An' bein' as it's Sunday mornin' an' Miss De Lancey gone to church, I'll bring you a cup of coffee an' some toast up here."

For all the world loves a lover. And are not violets and lovers synonymous?

Jane sat up in bed and reached for the box.

"Never mind about the coffee. I've overslept, but I'll be down in a few minutes."

She was undoing the box with trembling fingers, and the maid, all unnoticed, lingered curiously. Out came a great bunch of California violets done up in the most approved fashion—purple foil, cord, tassel and all.

"For me? Impossible! And there is no card."

She turned to the lid of the box.

"Gabrielle."

The florist around the corner!

Oh, it had been a cruel mistake. No one in the great city knew it was her birthday, and none would care if they knew.

"Now, Jane Williams," she said as sternly as was possible with a mouth half full of hairpins, "right after breakfast you'll take that box back. It belongs to some other Miss Williams."

And it went back, the excited girl rushing right past the new boarder in her haste—and, yes, in her tiny heart an ache that the flowers were not meant for her.

"Gabrielle" spoke a most impossible dialect, and he did his little worst to make Jane understand that there had been no mistake. But Jane firmly refused to carry the flowers back with her, and, just to convince herself that she was satisfied with what she had done, she walked half an hour in the park, returning to find the box standing on her shabby bureau. Again she opened it, and this time an engraved card met her gaze. "Mr. Frederick W. Grey," and beneath was the pencilled legend: "Birthday wishes, and may I see you soon? I am waiting in the parlor now if you care to come down."

"Frederick W. Grey?"

That must be the red headed assistant bookkeeper who was "Freddy" to every one in the office save herself. She had never heard his last name. Of course she would see him and thank him, though she could not imagine how he had known about her birthday.

Tucking the lovely flowers into her belt and giving a few deft touches to tie and hair, she tripped down to the parlor.

But only the new boarder, he of the fine gray eyes, was there to greet her, and he certainly stood at attention as if waiting for her.

She held the card in her hand and looked about inquiringly.

"Jane—little Jane Williams—don't you know me?" demanded the new boarder.

Then suddenly something new and strange pulled at Jane's heartstrings and at memories long dead. Something new and wonderful bounded through her veins.

"Willie—little Willie," she almost sobbed. "Oh, if you'd tied the flowers with pink tarlatan I would have remembered!"

It took him so long to tell her all about it—of his wandering with his eccentric old grandfather from mining camp to mining camp, from Mexico to Peru and Chile, of fortune made and lost and found again and of how the grandfather, growing more and more bitter against the recreant husband of his only daughter, had insisted that the grandson have his name changed by the law from that of his father's family to his mother's.

Then followed the story of how he had gone back to the old town directly his grandfather had departed on the last long journey; how no one seemed to know where she had gone, and how he had finally traced her to Mrs. De Lancey's and had come there unannounced to make sure that he would be welcome—that she had not changed—and had not found some one else.

"Oh, Willie!" she sighed contentedly from a comfortable resting place on his shoulder. "Just as if there had ever been any one else since I lit the birthday candles!"

They had pre-empted the tawdry cozy corner, and by that time Mrs. De Lancey had come back from church, donned her pink silk negligee and was staring at them accusingly from the center of the ugly red and green parlor.

But when you have fine gray eyes you generally have the courage to announce your intentions, and Frederick William Grey did it so effectively that Mrs. De Lancey wiped her tears on the flowing sleeve of her pink negligee and shook hands with them both; then, turning her back on the cozy corner, for once put to its legitimate use, she departed, murmuring: "Well, you never can tell what sort of girl will land a man. And her hair so plain and her face so pale too!"

When One Spends Money.

One would think that money would be saved in prosperous times when there is plenty of it about. But no; that is not the time when it is saved. It is then that it is spent. Everybody spends it—governments, railroads, corporations, capitalists, housekeepers, house builders, collectors. People expand their wants in such times and satisfy some of them, and then is when it is most of all impossible to live on anything a year. But after all the money has been spent a few times over and has come to be a serious matter and folks have much less to spend and no expectations then everybody groans and begins to save, not only trying desperately to squeeze back inside of the bounds of income, but to pay back what was spent in expectation of a time when saving would have become convenient. To most of us that time never comes. And yet there are things for which we spend more than we can afford, that really do justify our expenditures, so that after the money has been spent and we are pinched for the lack of it we would still rather have what it bought than have the money back.—Appleton's.

Napoleon at Dinner.

Napoleon was no epicure. He usually drank nothing but diluted chambertin and was no judge of wine. He liked plain dinners—boiled or roast chicken, mutton chops, grilled neck of mutton, haricot beans or lentils. His table manners were not very refined. He would use his finger in lieu of fork or spoon and would dip his bread in the sauce, the dish being then passed around to guests, who had to dispense with squeamishness. The bread had to be particularly good. He ate fast, quitting the table in twelve minutes and leaving Josephine and the company to take their time. When he dined alone he commonly took only eight or ten minutes. Indigestion was the natural consequence of this speed, and he had sometimes to stretch himself at full length on the carpet till the pain abated. He detested physic and professed to disbelieve in it, a subject of playful discussion with his doctors. Constant never knew him to be obliged to keep his bed a whole day. He was very sensitive to cold and had fires and warm beds all the year.

EXPLOSIVES.

How They Are "Set Off" and How They May Be Handled.

There are two ways in which an explosive may be set off—by burning and by detonation. The burning process is progressive from one particle to another, as of fire in a grate, only infinitely more rapid. This process is adapted to gunpowder, requiring, as it does, a very short time for the burning up of the explosive body. The other form of explosion, the detonative, being at once throughout the mass, is unfitted for use in guns, which would be smashed to pieces, but is adapted to shattering or breaking purposes, such as blasting rocks in mining operations and bursting charges in shells, torpedoes and submarine mines. Substances of the latter sort are termed high explosives. Some examples may be given of the safety with which the most dangerous explosives may ordinarily be handled. For instance, a considerable quantity of gun cotton, such as pure cotton treated with nitric acid, may be set afire and will burn quietly, but if a sufficient mass be set afire the heat and pressure on the surface of the burning body will cause the whole to be exploded. A torpedo filled with wet compressed gun cotton will not explode if a shell from a cannon should penetrate it and burst in the mass of gun cotton. Even nitroglycerin will burn like oil in small quantities, and a stick of nitroglycerin may be set on fire without danger of harm.—St. Nicholas.

A CHARMED KEY.

Its Refusal to Work and What Might Have Happened.

You may be interested to hear of a thing which happened to me in Brittany last summer. I had to sign some railway transfers before the nearest British consul, who was at Brest. I locked up the papers and railway stock in a Breton cupboard as high as the ceiling and very solid. I kept the key in my pocket.

When my cousin and I were ready to start, I took out the key, and it would not open its own cupboard. The servants came in turn and tried in vain. We had to miss our train to Quimper, which was our first stage to Brest. Now, our village locksmith was very rough and ready, so the next morning I said I would try the key myself once more before he perhaps ruined my lock.

The key fitted perfectly, the cupboard opened easily, we got the papers, and we went. But, imagine, we found at the station placards posted up telling of the awful wreck of the Brest train the day before, and it was the train in which we should have been but for the obstinacy of the key. We saw the carriages all fallen into the river, and the dead and dying were in the hospital at Quimper. We feel this to be a preservation wrought from the next world that is so near.—Mrs. Hodgson Pratt in Light.

Savage Crabs.

The most savage specimen of the crab species is found in Japan, seeming to dream of nothing but fighting, to delight in nothing half so much. The minute he spies another of his kind he scrapes his claws together in rage, challenging him to the combat. Not a moment is wasted in preliminaries, but at it they go, hammer and tongs. It sounds like two rocks grinding against one another. The sand flies as the warriors push each other hither and thither until at last one of them stretches himself out in the sun, tired to death. But he does not beg for mercy or attempt to run away, only feebly rubbing his claws together in defiance of the foe. That foe comes closer, and, with his claws trembling with joy at his victory, the conqueror catches hold of one claw of the vanquished crab, twists it until it comes off and bears away the palpitating limb as a trophy of his prowess. Such is a battle between warrior crabs.

A Woman's Back

Has many aches and pains caused by weaknesses and falling, or other displacement, of the pelvic organs. Other symptoms of female weakness are frequent headache, dizziness, imaginary specks or dark spots floating before the eyes, gnawing sensation in stomach, dragging or bearing down in lower abdominal or pelvic region, disagreeable drains from pelvic organs, faint spells with general weakness.

If any considerable number of the above symptoms are present there is no remedy that will give quicker relief or a more permanent cure than Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It has a record of over forty years of cures. It is the most potent invigorating tonic and strengthening nervine known to medical science. It is made of the glyceric extracts of native medicinal roots found in our forests and contains not a drop of alcohol or harmful, or habit-forming drugs. Its ingredients are all printed on the bottle-wrapper and attested under oath as correct.

Every ingredient entering into "Favorite Prescription" has the written endorsement of the most eminent medical writers of all the several schools of practice—more valuable than any amount of non-professional testimonials—though the latter are not lacking, having been contributed voluntarily by grateful patients in numbers to exceed the endorsements given to any other medicine extant for the cure of woman's ills.

You cannot afford to accept any medicine of unknown composition as a substitute for this well proven remedy OF KNOWN COMPOSITION, even though the dealer may make a little more profit thereby. Your interest in regaining health is paramount to any selfish interest of his and it is an insult to your intelligence for him to try to palm off upon you a substitute. You know what you want and it is his business to supply the article called for.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are the original "Little Liver Pills" first put up by old Dr. Pierce over forty years ago, much imitated but never equaled. Little sugar-coated granules—easy to take as candy.

Municipal Election Monday.

THE municipal election to be held here next Monday promises to be a lively contest. There are three candidates in the field for City Trustee with two to be elected. Messrs. R. McDonell and L. Quartaroli are running mates and Mr. G. H. Hotz, who is opposing them, is going it on his own hook. Considerable opposition is being manifested toward the latter, who, it is claimed, is antagonistic to many business interests of the town owing to a lack of judgment as a public official. However this may be, his opponents, Messrs. McDonell and Quartaroli, will be benefitted by this opposition, and as both stand for better sanitation and a sewer system, it looks as though they will be elected, although the contest may be a close one.

The City Marshalship contest will also be a lively one between Jas. H. Albertson, incumbent, and John Stockwell. This office carries with it a munificent salary of four bits a day without being "found" and the kicks of a kicking community.

For Clerk and Treasurer the contest will be a love feast, as the incumbents, Clerk Jos. B. Small and Treasurer Jesse Burris, have no opponents. This will give the timid voter a chance to shout the praises of two candidates at least without fear of incurring the displeasure of rival nominees.

Court Room Decorum.

In the attendance and reports of trials in our courts to-day one is impressed with with the lack of dignity between lawyers of opposing sides, or, to be more specific, the lack of decorum. The majesty of the law in our courts is not exalted by the wrangling, personal banters, or vituperative remarks addressed by our attorneys to each other. Yet they glory in the indulgence of such sallies and sarcasm as a valuable asset for opposing counsel. True it is that there are fines for contempt of court and often the presiding judge is severe in his reprimands, but too often the entire court room finds the personal conflict of the legal lights more entertaining than the evidence itself and so the practice has been encouraged. We have had plenty of evidence of personal conflicts of this character in the graft prosecution cases, in the Thaw trial and in some recent damage suits.

In the trial of any case the all-important matter is the settlement of the affairs of the parties to it and with this end in view evidence should not be punctuated and time taken up by lawyers' indulgence in personal word-wars. It may enliven jury duty, but this is the only excuse for its being.

The Country and the Cities.

THE cities are looking to the country this year to relieve their cramped affairs, to clear the financial stream and open the flood gates of prosperity. The country is equal to it all with the help of providence and good guidance. Here in California the interior promises a rich harvest and our own county will yield much and give work to many if the elements will lend aid to the crop which promises so bountcous a return.

The State Promotion Committee has the following bulletin on our crop conditions: "Many thousands of acres of new vineyards and orchards will come into bearing in California during the coming season, and indications point to good crops in all lines. Increased activity is marked in all California industries. The demand for labor is marked in agricultural pursuits, and all competent men can obtain steady employment. Reports from the vineyard districts show that the shortage in labor there is so great that employment will be found by all who apply. There is great demand for women and girls in the canneries and drying establishments. These will be needed with the opening of the fruit season, and they will have constant employment for three months."

"BEAUTY is as beauty does." Even in matters such as ornamental schools and city halls whose architecture may improve the appearance of a town but do not really add to it unless there is inward harmony and good administration. We are proud of Sonoma's new buildings but we point more with pride to an honest city government and improvement in our high school during the past year. We care not only to show our neighbors that Sonoma will be taxed for improvements but we want to show that she interests herself in the manner of expenditure in the administration of the community affairs in general, so we may be proud when strangers tell us we have good schools and a good city council rather than when they praise our new buildings and mission architecture. It is the internal affairs and the spirit within which really count and should not be ignored though we build and build.

IF Fighting Bob Evans can't get relief from rheumatism we will have to get up a Sonoma Day for him and escort him up here to our own springs, where so many are relieved from the painful malady.

BURBANK is interesting himself in politics. Perhaps he may give us a new type of politician or change the color of political plums

Consumption is less deadly than it used to be.

Certain relief and usually complete recovery will result from the following treatment:

Hope, rest, fresh air, and—Scott's Emulsion.

SANTA ROSA TO CELEBRATE THE 4TH

Chamber of Commerce Invites Sonoma People to Participate.

The Chamber of Commerce and other civic bodies and the citizens in general of Santa Rosa are planning celebrating the Fourth of July on a big scale this year.

Two years ago the entire business section of the City of Roses was completely destroyed by that memorable earthquake that can never be effaced from the memory of those who viewed the dreadful devastation wrought in less than a minute. The ruin was not only complete but appaling. Yet the people of the metropolis of imperial Sonoma with marvelous energy set about rebuilding their city almost before the vibrations of the lesser temblo s that followed the first had ceased, and to-day stands on the ruins of the old Santa Rosa a New Santa Rosa bigger, more beautiful, more costly than ever.

That a community of enterprising spirts after accomplishing the task of rebuilding their city in the short space of twenty-four months can pause from their labors to do honor to our natal day shows that they are as patriotic as they are brave and energetic, and one cannot help admiring the devotion of the people of Santa Rosa not only to their city but to the country that gave them birth as well.

All hail to its people and let every section of the county join hands with them and make their celebration worthy of one of the most prosperous counties in all California.

The Chamber of Commerce issues the following invitation to the people of this valley to join in with them on this occasion :

Santa Rosa, April 6, 1908.
Ed. Index-Tribune :
Sonoma, Cal.

Dear Sir : The Chamber of Commerce of Santa Rosa has appointed a committee to arrange for a celebration on the coming Fourth of July. It is the desire of the committee to make this the grandest celebration ever held in this county and the committee is desirous of having the whole county come and calebrate with us.

We extend to you and through your paper to the people of your city and vicinity a most cordial invitation to come to Santa Rosa and help in celebrating our national day, " the glorious Fourth of July."

Yours truly,
Committee on Celebration.

Received a Complimentary Vote.

At the recent school election held in the Dunbar district a high compliment was paid to Mr. Froment, for many years a resident in the Dunbar district but who changed his home to Sonoma a couple of months ago. Previous to locating here Mr. Froment, in addition to being the President of the Dunbar Improvement Club, was also a member from that district of the Sonoma Valley Union High School Board. Both of these became vacant by change of residence. That the citizens of the upper part of the valley hold Mr. Froment in the highest esteem no better evidence is wanted than the fact that at the election in question Mr. Froment, although a non-resident of Dunbar ,was given five votes for High School trustee out of the thirteen polled, as follows : Thos. Johnson, 6 ; A. Froment, 5 ; C. Trowbridge, 2.

Joe Ryan Was Here.

Weather and Crops.

The rain still continues to hold off and our farmers and dairymen for the first time in many years are actually becoming alarmed at the long-continued dry spell, which portends a drouth year if rain does not come inside of another week. Hay, grain and pasturage has already commenced to show the effects of the warm, dry weather of the past two weeks and a number of grain and hay fields are turning yellow. The same may be said of pasturage in some sections of the valley. Whether this valley is blessed with its usual April showers or not they have now held off so long that the hay crop in this section is bound to be a light one the coming harvest.

Grapes and fruit, however, promise an abundant crop.

SONOMA AND THE GRAFT PROSECUTION

Francis J. Heney Acknowledges Words of Encouragement From Our People

Dr. D. R. Van Amringe and ninety-nine other leading citizens of this city on Tuesday forwarded to Francis J. Henry of San Francisco their written endorsement of the graft prosecution being conducted by him and District Attorney Langdon.

In acknowledging the receipt of the endorsement Mr. Heney writes under date of the 9th inst., as follows to Dr. Van Amringe, who was selected to forward the names to him :

"It is highly gratifying to the District Attorney, Hon. William H. Langdon, and those associated with him in the prosecution, including myself, to receive this encouraging message from the good people of Sonoma. You may assure your fellow citizens that the graft prosecution will keep up the work with energy and determination to the end, whatever obstacles may be thrown in our path by a powerful and unscrupulous opposition.

"We realize that while in one sense our fight is local to San Francisco, in a larger sense it is a fight for civic decency and common honesty in government that will have a far-reaching effect throughout our country, provided we are successful. An enlightened public opinion will do much to help us, and such messages as yours stimulate us greatly to go ahead unfalteringly. They show that the heart of the people is sound.

Very respectfully yours,
FRANCIS J. HENEY.

THE MUNICIPAL ELECTION MONDAY.

The Candidates and What Some of them Stand For.

Although much interest is being taken in the election to be held here for municipal officers next Monday the contest so far has been entirely free from personal abuse. This is as it should be as nothing is to be gained by resorting to such reprehensible tactics.

Two Town Trustees are to be chosen among other officials at the election Monday and three candidates are in the field, all of whom are old citizens of the town. These are Ranald McDonell and G. H. Hotz, incumbents, and L. Quartaroli.

Those voters who are opposed to class legislation are lined up against Mr. Hotz, some of whose official acts have been antagonistic to the business interests of the town and it is claimed he has legislated for the classes as against the masses. This has arrayed against him most formidable opposition and he has a hard row to hoe.

Messrs. McDonell and Quartaroli, who are opposing him, stand for everything he does not and have given out that they favor legislation beneficial to the people as a whole and not for a particular class. They also favor better sanitation, a sewer and any other public improvements that will benefit Sonoma. Behind these are lined up at least three-fourths of the business men of the town as a matter of self-protection.

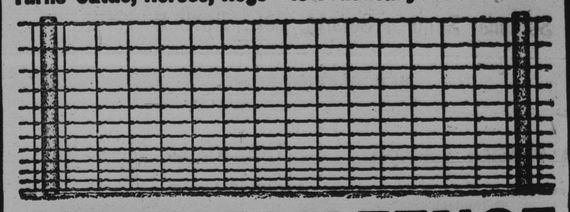

There is no opposition to Jos. B. Small for City Clerk and Jesse Burris for Treasurer and they are not bothering their heads about the election at all as both are sure of a walk-over.

The contest over the City Marshalship gives promise of being a peach. The candidates are Jas. H. Albertson, incumbent, and John Stockwell. Both have their advocates. Jim, however, seems to have the inside track. The principle at stake in this contest is the ability to herd predatory cows by moonlight and preserve the peace of one of the most orderly towns to be found anywhere.

U. S. Senator Geo. C. Perkins and Congressman Duncan E. McKinlay will please accept our thanks for public documents forwarded to this office this week.

Tells How to Prepare a Simple Mixture to Overcome Dread Disease

To relieve the worst forms of rheumatism, take a teaspoonful of the following mixture after each meal and at bedtime :

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce ; Compound Kargon, one ounce ; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces

These harmless ingredients can be obtained from our home druggists, and are easily mixed by shaking them well in a bottle. Relief is generally felt from the first few doses.

This prescription, states a well-known authority in a Cleveland morning paper, forces the clogged-up, inactive kidneys to filter and strain from the blood the poisonous waste matter and uric acid, which causes rheumatism.

As rheumatism is not only the most painful and tortorous disease, but dangerous to life, this simple recipe will no doubt be greatly valued by many sufferers here at home, who should at once prepare the mixture to get this relief.

It is said that a person who would take this prescription regularly, a dose or two daily, or even a few times a week, would never have serious kidney or urinary disorders or rheumatism.

Cut this out and preserve it. Good rheumatism prescriptions which really relieve are scarce, indeed, and when you need it, you want it badly. Our druggists here say they will either supply these ingredients or make the mixture ready to take, if any of our readers so prefer.

The Daily Chronicle and Index-Tribune only $9 for the two newspapers.

TEA

The cost of good tea is so very little: only a third of a cent a cup! a cent-and-a-half or two cents for the family breakfast!

Your grocer returns your money if you don't like Schilling's Best; we pay him.

Do You Feel Chilly, Then Feverish and Ache all Over?

Feel Worn-out, Blue and Tired? Have You a Fresh Cold, With Frequent Hacking Cough? Sensation of Soreness in the Chest or Back?

Don't let your case run into bronchitis, or some other obstinate and dangerous malady. The very best medicine to take in such a case is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Made without alcohol or dangerous drugs, it contains that rare combination of native medicinal roots that will allay a cough (iron it out, as it were), restore the circulation, assist the appetite and digestion, and consequently restore tone to the entire system. That is the reason people look happy once more after taking it—they feel like living, because their liver is active, the blood in their arteries is full of that life-giving quality—rich, red blood. The blood in turn feeds the nerves.

Nervousness and neuralgia are only the indication that the nerves are not fed on invigorating blood. This "Medical Discovery" of Dr. Pierce is nature's own restorer. It tones up the organism and invigorates its functions, furnishing to the body one of its necessary constituent principles of which it is in need.

This preparation is of pleasant taste, agrees perfectly with rebellious and sensitive stomachs, and is extremely effective in restoring tone and vigor to the entire system. It cures troubles of the stomach and at the same time the blood-vessels are given such a toning up as to throw off a cold. One very good reason why it restores the health of run-down, pale and emaciated people is because it first throws out the poisons through the liver and kidneys. It then begins its reconstructive work in building up flesh and making good, rich, red blood.

"I have been a sufferer from indigestion for some thirty years, at times," writes Mr. S. W. Mullenax, of Circleville, W. Va., "and have used medicine from several of our best physicians, which gave me only a little temporary relief. They said I could never be cured. Last winter I was stricken with the worst spell that I ever had. I suffered with such severe pains in the pit of my stomach that I could neither work nor sleep, and my weight went down from one hundred and ninety-five pounds to one hundred and sixty pounds in about two months' time. I then concluded that I would try Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. By the time the first bottle was gone, I felt some relief from my severe suffering so continued until I had used four bottles of 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I am truly thankful for the great benefit which I have received from your medicine, and can cordially recommend it to others."

It Stands Alone not only in respect to its ingredients but also as the only medicine for stomach, liver and blood disorders, which absolutely CONTAINS PURELY VEGETABLE AND PERFECTLY HARMLESS INGREDIENTS, WITH NO ALCOHOL.

It Stands Alone as the best alterative medicine, the makers of which take their patients fully into their confidence and tell them exactly what they are taking. This Dr. Pierce can afford to do, because his "GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY" is made of such ingredients and after a working formula that has thousands of cures to its credit, placing its merits above criticism.

It Stands Alone as Nature's cure for many chronic diseases and its ingredients are: Golden Seal root, Queen's root, Stone root, Black Cherrybark, Bloodroot, Mandrake root, and chemically pure glycerine.

Remember, these are the ORIGINAL Little Liver Pills, first put up by old Dr. R. V. Pierce, over 40 years ago, and although much imitated, have never been equaled. Made of concentrated and refined medicinal principles, extracted from native American plants and roots, therefore purely vegetable and perfectly harmless. One little Pellet for a stomachic, or stomach and bowel regulator, three tiny granules for a cathartic.

Spring Medicine

The best is Hood's Sarsaparilla. It is the best because it does the most good.

While it makes the blood pure, fresh and lively, it tones the stomach to better digestion, creates an appetite, stimulates the kidneys and liver, gives new brain, nerve and digestive strength.

An unequaled list of cures—40,366 testimonials in two years—proves its merit.

Mrs. J. F. Gee, 50 Gould Street, Stoneham, Mass., says: "In 25 years experience I have never known Hood's Sarsaparilla to fail, for spring humors and as a general blood purifier; it cures scrofula, eczema; has no equal as a general spring medicine. It gives me genuine satisfaction to say this."

Sarsatabs—For those who prefer medicine in tablet form, Hood's Sarsaparilla is now put up in chocolated tablets called Sarsatabs, as well as in the usual liquid form. Sarsatabs have identically the same curative properties as the liquid form, besides accuracy of dose, convenience, economy, there being no loss by evaporation, breakage or leakage. Sold by druggists or sent by mail. C. I. Hood Co., Lowell, Mass.

Wise Talks by the Office Boy Repeated.

I was reading the other day about King Edward coming out on the streets of London with a side crease on his trousers, and that J. Pierpont Morgan, who noticed the act, was telling the reporters he'd never stand for it. I'm wondering why J. Pierp shied at the crease; he's been pushing out a good many side lines himself. An all round good dresser knows that the trousers can express as much art and individuality as the coat and vest. In fact if the trousers are not right the coat can't look the part. In this store they see that the trousers fit and express that neat gentility that belongs to the whole outfit.

Most people are satisfied if the coat hangs right and the vest fits snugly, but we are never satisfied unless the whole suit hangs right, looks right, and feels right.

This is going to be a piping good year for business. I know it by the way the Spring togs are coming out already. Better look in and see what's doing. You don't have to buy until you're ready.

A PERSIAN SERVANT.

He Was Poetical Even if Useless and Dishonest.

In one way Persia reminds one dimly of England, for there are such things as difficulties with servants even in Teheran. The author dismissed one of his servants, who, as he had been a tailor, was incompetent to do anything but sew on buttons. The man protested, "What will become of me now that I have been eating your salt for such a long time and am driven out into the streets?" He was reminded that he had only been employed for a fortnight. He answered that he felt it had been for years. He was told that he was no good, but his volubility only increased. "How can I be no good after having stayed with you? Can you forget what Sa'di said: 'A piece of clay having fallen into the Hammam from my beloved's hand into mine, I said to it, Art thou musk or ambergris that I am drunk with thy perfume, which catches at the heart?' It answered: 'I was but a worthless piece of clay, but I was in company with a rose for a moment. This companionship transformed me or else I should still be the same piece of clay that I was.'"

One can pity the state of an English mistress confronted with such an argument. The author kept his servant another week, and he remarks disconsolately that in that time he discovered that if the tailor was a poet he was also a thief.—London Globe.

ADVERTISING.

The Mightiest Factor In the Modern Business World.

"Advertising is today the mightiest factor in the business world," writes Truman A. De Weese in System, the Magazine of Business. "It is an evolution of modern industrial competition. It is a business builder, with a potency that goes beyond human desire. It is something more than a 'drummer' knocking at the door of the consumer, something more than mere salesmanship on paper.

"Advertising is a positive creative force in business. It builds factories, skyscrapers and railroads. It makes two blades of grass grow in the business world where only one grew before. It multiplies human wants and intensifies desires. The result is that it forces man to greater consumption, hence stimulates his production to keep up with his buying desires.

"Before advertising was developed into a fine art and before it became a factor in the commercial world the business of the manufacturer and merchant was to supply the normal needs and desires of the human family; merchandising was bounded by man's necessities and by his meager knowledge of the luxuries which he deemed within his reach."

Hint of Untidiness.

"If you want to study human nature just try being a salesman in a department store for even a short time," said the clerk over his evening meal. "There isn't a day but I have a quiet laugh over the remarks of customers or, more frequently, would be customers. Today, for instance, I was approached by a well dressed elderly woman with the request to show her some cups and saucers. She did not want china ones—something in porcelain, for 'common everyday use,' she said. I brought out samples, and finally her choice simmered down to a plain white and the other a white with a dull grayish green figure. As if to account for her decision she said to me in a most confidential tone: 'I guess I'll take the gray ones. They won't show the dirt so soon.'"—New York Press.

A Pugnacious Super.

When F. R. Benson, the actor, was training two armies of "supers" for a battle, he had some difficulty in persuading the weaker side to submit to be conquered. Even at the first performance the vanquished force, which included a somewhat pugnacious Irishman, who may be called X., upset traditional usages by severely mauling its victors, and the play must have suffered if the hint of one of the warriors had not been taken.

"Look a-here, Mr. Benson," he said, "if you want us to be beaten, you must put X. in the other army. That's the only way."—London Standard.

Margaret's Alphabet.

Little Margaret was having difficulty with the alphabet, which was being taught her in the good old way. The letter H was a desperate pitfall. H she could not remember, so her mother said, "See, Margaret, it looks like a gate." That was an inspiration. Now Margaret is in clover. She never forgets, but this is what she says:

A, b, c, d, e, f, g, gate, i, etc. Her mother sees still harder work ahead in making the little maid forget.—Washington Star.

Proved.

De Million—I must say I am very much disappointed in you. You told me that when you were married you would prove that you had business ability. Du Porely—Well, my dear sir, I did prove that when I married your daughter.

Doesn't Agree.

"You should never take anything that doesn't agree with you," the physician told Mr. Marks.

"If I had always followed that rule, Maria," he remarked to his wife, "where would you be?"

Carved His Name.

Naybor—That boy of yours seems to be a bright one. He'll cut out a name for himself some day. Popley (angrily)—He's done it already—on our new piano!

THE WORLD OF HOMER.

Ancient Idea of the Earth and Its Margin of Water.

Let us consider for one moment what the idea of the world was—not, indeed, at the earliest period of which we have any knowledge, but at the dawn of written history or of written history among that Indo-Germanic people whose descendants have overspread so much of the earth. The world of Homer was a small, flat surface, in which civilization was hemmed in by foreign races, who again were surrounded by a great ocean or river over which no man had ever passed. The world of which Homer had any definite notion was Greece—a Greece which hardly extended as far as the Balkans on the north and which scarcely included the Levant and the islands in the Aegean sea. No doubt he had some general acquaintance with a world beyond these narrow limits. He knew, at any rate, some of the leading features of northern Africa. He had heard, as was only natural, of Egypt, whose civilization had made such marked advances and was exercising so much influence. He had some knowledge of the great river on whose recurring floods Egypt depends for her prosperity. He had even heard of the pygmies and of the Ethiopians who dwelt higher up its stream. Some reports had reached him of southern Italy. But it is hopeless to attempt to fit the geography of Homer to the actual facts. If a man were to search today for the precise spot on which Captain Lemuel Gulliver was wrecked in the first of his famous voyages he would find that the Lilliput of Swift was in the heart of Australia, and much in the same way, to quote Mr. Gladstone's language, "the key to the great contrast between the outer geography (of Homer) and the facts of nature lies in the belief of Homer that a great sea occupied the space where we know the heart of the European continent to lie."

It is another indication of the smallness of Homer's world that the ten years' war, of which he has given us the concluding episode, was not, as even Herodotus has described it, one of the opening chapters of the great struggle which has endured throughout historic times between east and west, but a contest between men of common origin. It is not a mere poetical license which makes Greeks and Romans address one another in the same language. Yet the world of Homer, small as it seems to us, seemed large to him. Compared with the mighty oceans which men now traverse the Mediterranean is but a little landlocked sea. The Mediterranean of the "Iliad" was only the Aegean, yet for Homer it had terrors which the Atlantic has not for us.—Sir Spencer Walpole in Contemporary Review.

Jack's Lucky Bag.

The annual publication of the brigade of midshipmen at Annapolis goes by the name of "The Lucky Bag," even as that of the corps of cadets at West Point bears the military appellation of "The Howitzer." On board ship is kept what is called a lucky bag. Into this are put all sorts of articles that are left around the decks or out of their proper places by the men. At the end of each month the lucky bag is opened, and the men who have lost different articles gather around it in the hope that they have been lucky enough to have had their possessions find their way into the lucky bag. At the end of the month the bag generally is filled with a great variety of articles. In it are jackknives, pairs of shoes, plugs of chewing tobacco, sewing kits, caps, photographs, writing materials, and so on through practically the entire list of the sailor's possessions.—New York Tribune.

Deplorable Levity.

"We students can stand a good many things," said the college girl, "but this last missionary was too much for us. He preached on the glories of the missionary calling for women. He told us we ought all of us to go and help the heathen. That was all right.

"But then he worked up to a glowing finish. 'Now, I appeal to you, as college women, how much better than mere learning and mere books it is to go forth into the world and become fishers of men!'

"That was too much. Of course we smiled. In fact, some of us snickered audibly. Then the missionary complained to 'prexy' that he couldn't help noticing a deplorable spirit of levity apparent among the students."—Philadelphia Ledger.

America on Top.

Some years ago, while on a tour through Europe, Sir Henry Roscoe paid a visit to Vesuvius, which was at the time in eruption. He there met an American, who spoke in depreciatory terms of the magnificent spectacle.

"Well," remarked Sir Henry, "when all is said and done, you have nothing like this in America."

"No," replied the other, "but we have a river that would put the whole darned thing out in five minutes."

On Terra Firma.

"What does become of all the pins?" cried Mrs. X. as she vainly sought for one on her dressing table.

"I know, mamma," cried her little son, who had just begun to study Latin, "They fall to the earth and become terrapins."—Harper's Weekly.

This Earthly Stage.

"The sun," remarked the kindly citizen, "shines for all."

"And that's what worries some people," averred the caustic citizen. "They seem to think the sun ought to be hauled as a spot light."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Indigestion

Stomach trouble is but a symptom of, and not in itself a true disease. We think of Dyspepsia, Heartburn, and Indigestion as real diseases, yet they are symptoms only of a certain specific Nerve sickness—nothing else.

It was this fact that first correctly led Dr. Shoop in the creation of that now very popular Stomach Remedy—Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Going direct to the stomach nerves, alone brought that success and favor to Dr. Shoop and his Restorative. Without that original and highly vital principle, no such lasting accomplishments were ever to be had.

For stomach distress, bloating, biliousness, bad breath and sallow complexion, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—and see for yourself what it can and will do. We sell and cheerfully recommend
